

CELLULAR PRUSSIANS (project).

10 hobby soldiers dressed in Frederick the Great's guard uniforms. These "Prussians" are posted in various public spaces in Potsdam (for example: in front of the town hall, in the middle of a city square, inside a shopping mall, a pedestrian zone, outside a popular disco, etc.). Each uniform is equipped with a cellular phone and an integrated loudspeaker system that automatically allows anyone to call them up and talk "out loud" through their helmets: this is a high-tech version of the Speaker's Corner in Hyde Park.